About Nisha

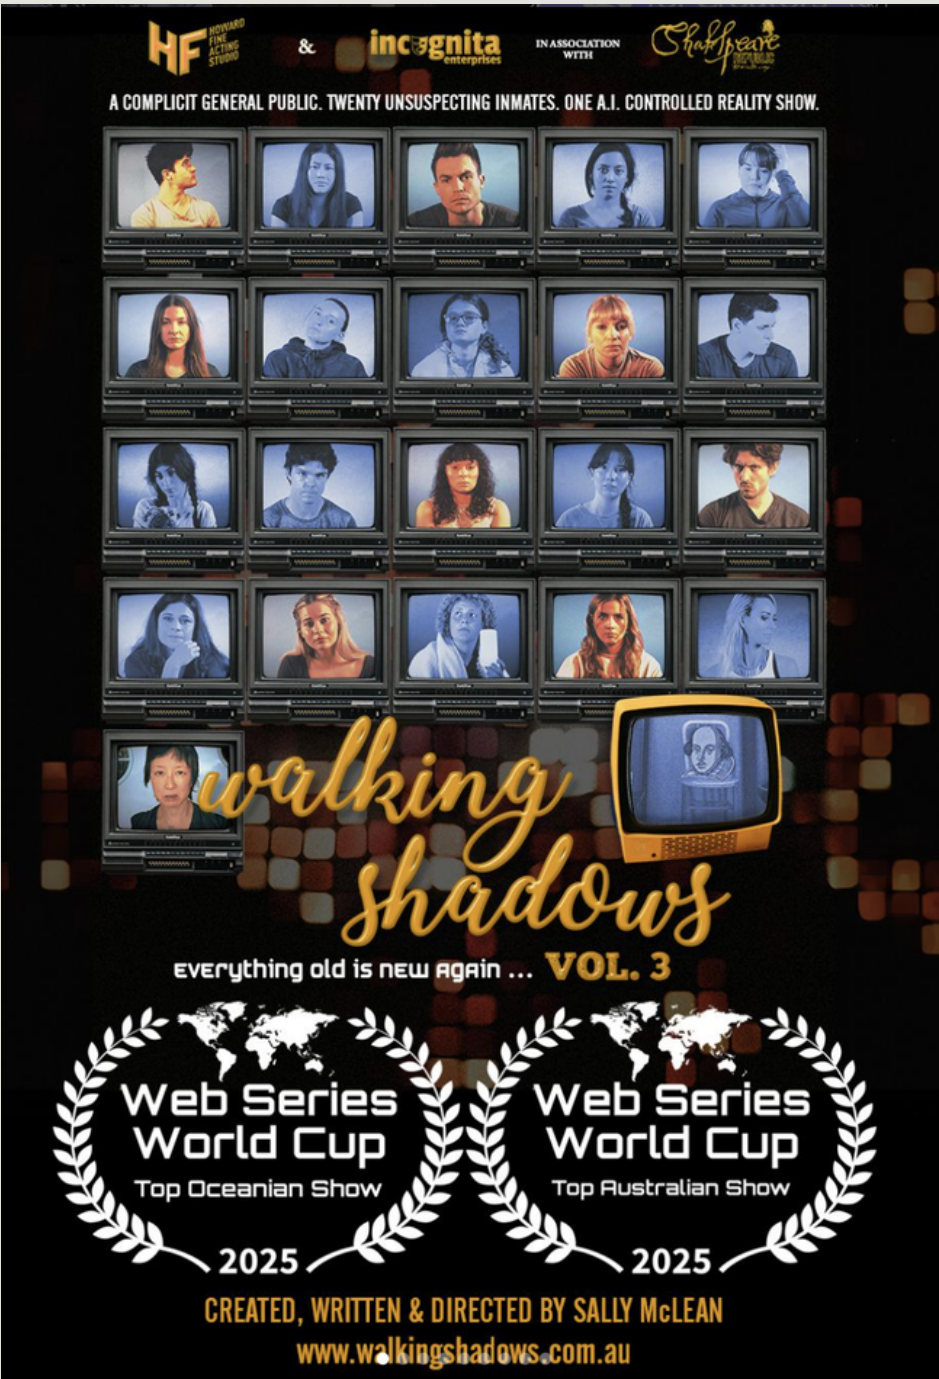

Nisha is a Malaysian-born actor of Indian heritage whose work is driven by curiosity and a keen understanding of human behaviour. Known for her versatility and grounded performances, she brings a warm, compelling presence to both stage and screen.

She recently appeared as Sam in Silent Night, the Tropfest award-winning short film. Her credits span theatre and television, including Gwendolen in The Importance of Being Earnest for Misfit Toys Productions (Darby Turnbull), Juliet in the award-winning web series Walking Shadows: Vol. 3 for Incognita Enterprises (Sally McLean), and Henni in Neighbours for Fremantle (Scott Major).

Beyond acting, Nisha wrote, co-produced, and co-directed her first short film, Alone. She holds a Master's degree in Psychology and is a classically trained Bharathanatyam dancer

Awards and Reviews:

Praise Dioysus Podcast review:

"Nisha Selvaraj as Gwendolen; you know when a character comes on stage and is so realised and full and detailed and you just can't look away from them the entire time. Fantastic, so in command of every line and moment she was onstage." Praise Dionysus
