

Charles Jazz Terrier is a French-Australian actor, writer, and director known for his intensity, versatility, and magnetic screen presence.

Born in Melbourne, with dual Australian-French citizenship, Charles Jazz Terrier was cast in his breakout role as Chad in The CW's LEGACIES, delivering a fan-favourite performance that launched him onto the international stage.

He began his screen career in the feature film, BLINDER, followed by turns on Australian Television, before breaking out locally in the Australian Sci-Fi feature OCCUPATION, followed by standout roles in the acclaimed Australian series WENTWORTH (as Danny Winter) and MS FISHER'S MODERN MURDER MYSTERIES (as Lewis Knox).

Most recently, he starred as Luke Staunton, the lead antagonist in A REMARKABLE PLACE TO DIE - a dark, charismatic turn that cements his status as a compelling leading man

Alongside his acting, Terrier is an accomplished writer and director. His debut solo feature, HAVEN'T YOU HEARD EVERYBODY HATES ME, is set for release in late 2025 - a bold, coming of age Comedy-Drama that showcases his talent behind the camera as well.

Now based between Australia, Europe and the U.S., Terrier continues to shape a career defined by range, emotional depth, and a fearless approach to storytelling.
