

Nicholas Westaway

"Nic has always loved performing. Having a musical background, he became accustomed to the stage at a young age. But through high school, music started to take a back seat as he discovered his true passion for acting. Nic has also had to juggle his love for sports. After being offered a place in the Sport Science course at UWA for 2008 he choose to turn it down to pursue acting. During his time at WAAPA he has performed as Donald in The Kid, directed by Marissa Gareffi; Count Muffat in Nana, directed by David Myles; and both perpetrators in The Laramie Project, directed by Craig Ilott. He has also starred in short films, music videos, and a tv commercial."
