PEDRAM BIAZAR

Pedram Biazar is an Australian actor of Iranian heritage, born and raised in Sydney. He began training at the National Institute of Dramatic Art (NIDA) from a young age, where he developed a foundation in both comedy and drama that continues to inform his work.

Motivated by the limited visibility of Middle Eastern voices on Australian stages and screens, Pedram is passionate about contributing to stories that expand representation in the arts. His work spans theatre, film, and screen, including appearances in major nationwide campaigns such as NSW's Consent Campaign and Wesley Mission's anti-gambling initiative.

In 2024, Pedram made his feature film debut in The Correspondent, directed by Kriv Stenders. He is a recent graduate of Macquarie University, holding a double degree in Psychology and Media & Communications (Film and Production), disciplines that shape his approach to character and storytelling. In 2026, Pedram will perform the role of Omid in English at the Seymour Centre.
