About Riley

Riley Jack Thompson is a British-Australian actor, writer, and director. He trained at the Stella Adler Studio of Acting, and now works across screen and stage as both a performer and filmmaker. Riley is the founder of independent production company Grandad's Chair Entertainment, creating original, character-driven narratives that have picked up multiple awards and nominations on the international festival circuit.

On the Screen

After completing his training at the Stella Adler Studio of Acting, Riley has been regularly working on the screen, accumulating credits in titles that range from international feature films to local short films.

Riley has been involved in a number of award-winning projects, including the role of 'Thomas' in The Bolters (Best International Short - London Film Club, Best Drama Short - New York Movie Awards), and 'Charlie' in What Was (Best Short Film - Brooklyn Int. Short Awards, Best Short Film - Eastern Europe Film Festival, Best Drama Short - Freewheeling Film Awards).

Some of his other highlights include credits in other award nominated films such as Mr Sterling's Daughter, Boys Club and Under Candlelight.

Behind the Scenes

When not in front of the camera, Riley is still flexing his creativity within the film industry, writing and directing short films.

Founder of the production company Grandad's Chair Entertainment, Riley has been involved in multiple award winning and nominated projects within the international festival circuit.

Since 2025, Riley has written over 10 short films, including the award-winning shorts The Bolters, What Was and Mr Sterling's Daughter. He has also directed a number of projects, including Mulier et Ecclesia, The Coconut Mate and Patience.
