

Bio Paul Chambers

Paul Chambers is a Sydney based actor. Paul comes with unique looks, having a commanding presence and haunting vocal abilities, which make him a very versatile actor, transcending a myriad of genres ranging from Shakespeare to psychological thriller and horror films such as The Writer and Pseudomonas.

Paul has played in theatre productions as the lead in When The Rain Stops Falling, Shakespeare's As You Like It playing Jaques and musical version of Twelfth Night singing role of Duke Orsino. Paul's TV involvement includes series such as Foxtel's TV series Ron Iddles - The Good Cop and 25 Frames.

Paul has trained at Screenwise, Darlo Drama and is currently a student of Matthew Levett in The Actors Workout. He possesses physical flexibility with skill in martial arts, knife and staff manipulation to name a few. Paul is also the father of two grown boys and has a colourful background of entertaining the restaurant world during his days of being a fully qualified chef.