Yutaka Izumihara studied acting at Wollongong University in Australia, and back to Japan and attended many various Japanese acting workshops. Yutaka landed roles first in theater, and then soon moved on to television, being casted in various commercial roles and next landing a television drama series. This led Yutaka to an impressive career move into the film industry. Among his career highlights include roles in 2003's ``The Postcard Bandit``, 2005's ``The Great Raid`` (Miramax), 2006's ``Superman Returns`` (WB), 2009's ``The Pacific`` (HBO) and ``Kokoda``, 2010's ``Sisters Of War``, 2012's ``The Wolverine`` (FOX) and ``The Railway Man``.

In ``The Pacific``, he also had worked as a Japanese military adviser, and since then he was hired as a military consultant for ``Kokoda (ABC Australia)`` and ``Sisters Of War(ABC)`` as well as an actor.

Yutaka also has a stunt license since 2011.
