

KATRIECE BOLDEN

Biography

Katriece Bolden is an Australian actress who began her acting career in her forties. Before that, she was a social worker, specialising in youth justice. She started her training at Brave Studios, moving onto further training at Howard Fine Acting Studio Australia. Recently, she completed In Scene Advanced at 16th Street Actors Studio. She has many credits in screen and theatre. Playing roles including a concerned and controlling mother in a short film, to her portrayal as Harper in the play 'Angels in America' and Stella in 'A Street Car Named Desire'. She has many other skills including street and ramp rollerblading and hip-hop dancing. As well as, her and her dog volunteering at a local dog obedience club as an instructor. Katriece tackles all that she does with a strong work ethic, curiosity, passion, collaboration, and gratitude. She is strongly driven by the positive impact film, tv, and theatre can have on society.