About

Cara Underhill is a true blue Aussie girl from the Northern Territory, who fell in love with acting after watching the 2017 Sydney production of 'My Fair Lady'. Cara has always been a performer, dabbling in dance, circus and debate with Corrugated Iron Youth Arts before dedicating her efforts to acting. Having grown up rurally; Cara spent most of her childhood fishing, camping and dreaming of being on the big screen. She moved to Sydney alone in 2024 to pursue her love for acting and completed The Advanced Diploma of Screen Acting at 'Screenwise Film & TV School for Actors'.

Back in the Northern Territory, Cara was a very active member in the theatre community, having played in productions of 'The Jungle Book', 'Back to the 80s' and 'Lord of the Flies', alongside teaching her own acting class. However she has been prioritising screen acting since moving to Sydney, appearing in a variety of short films, including 'Sunny Blues', 'Bang.' and 'Bricks'.

She has trained with industry professionals such as Denise Roberts, Alexandra Davies and Claire van der Boom; and has studied the Standard American and RP accents, screen combat, ADR, Mamet, Meisner, Morris, Stanislavski and more! As well some on set experience as an extra in the Stan original: 'Ten Pound Poms'.
