BRIELLE NOYEN

Brielle Noyen is an Australian actor, singer and performer with experience across television, film, theatre, musical theatre and comedy. She trained in Musical Theatre at The McDonald College of Performing Arts after moving to Sydney at 14 to pursue her passion for performance, and has since continued her screen training at Screenwise.

Some of Brielle's screen work includes the television production That Blackfella Show for ABC, as well as a range of short films including Publife, Aliens and In the Car. She has also explored sketch comedy, playing Elizabeth in On the Dole, a project she both performed in and created with friends.

A few of her theatre and musical theatre credits include Matilda in Matilda the Musical, Diana Morales in A Chorus Line, Molly in Recall and Beth in New Start Cleaners. Her performance background also extends into dance, having performed as the Goblin in Harry Potter Ballet.

Brielle is drawn to characters that are funny, emotionally complex, unpredictable and distinctly human. She brings a natural sense of humour and curiosity and truth to her performances, while also having a strong musical and physical foundation developed through years of training.

Beyond her formal training, Brielle is highly creative and observant and who loves discovering the small details that make a character believable. She has a particular interest in screen acting and comedy, while continuing to develop her work across film, television, theatre, voice and commercial performance.

Brielle is an emerging performer with a diverse foundation and a genuine enthusiasm for telling stories in all forms.
