

Rose Webb - Acting BIO

I started my acting training at Unitec drama school and when I graduated, one of the highlights of my career was acting in a feature film called Desired where I played a promiscuous character called Caja. This film was a finalist at the Festival de Cannes which I'm very proud of. I have also travelled the world, started my own business and worked in London as an Event Manager, this has expanded my creativity and helped me deal with a lot under pressure. The life experience of travelling, living and working in another country is beyond words, it has helped me understand how different people, different cultures and different nationalities come together to make things work. All the unique accents I have listened to along the way, and all the beautiful people I have met have helped understand and respect the individuality of others which I use as a strong tool in my acting career when taking on new roles.
