BIO

Alex Bull is an Australian actress based on the Gold Coast. While training under casting directors McSweeney Newman (Scooby-Doo) and Gregg Apps (Mission Impossible), she quickly uncovered her natural gift for comedy. She also sharpened her craft with comedian Darren Gilshenan (“Hugo” from Stan’s Population 11).

Just two weeks after graduating, Alex booked her first professional job on Peacock’s Apples Never Fall. Since then, she’s taken on lead roles in short films, commercials, and a TV series.

A career highlight came when Academy Award–winner and vintage-slapstick icon Peter Farrelly (Dumb & Dumber, Seinfeld) publicly praised her innate comedic ability on the international set of his latest buddy comedy — a moment she’s still recovering from.

Alex is full of beans about the industry and is excited to keep growing her range, especially in dramedy.

TRAINING

Alex began her training some number of years ago directly under Tom McSweeney at the Warehouse Workshop Screen Acting Studio, focusing on audition and scene analysis. She has worked one on one in screen acting with Tim Ross and self-taping with Dave Newman. She is trained comprehensively in accent and dialect with the esteemed Gabrielle Rogers. But it was Dianne Eden's particular attention that helped Alex discover the science behind her true voice and sound.

She has extensive training in improvisation with the likes of Louise Brehmer and Lisa Hughes. She also sharpens this skills everyday hosting live stunts shows at Warner Bro's Movie World, where she works directly with head of entertainment, Michael Croaker. She has learnt all about physical characterization from Scott Johnson and taken private classes with Darren Gilshenan in comedy.

Alex has also trained directly under the following casting agents: Anousha Zarkesh, McGregor, Greg & Robin Apps and Miss Jane Casting. She has trained in film fighting with working stunter's Dan Nelson and Jason O'Halloran. As well as Leo Stripp in Theatrical Armed Combat. She continues to grow her skills every day on set as well as taking various workshops and classes with directors and teachers.
