Originally from a cattle station in northwest Queensland, Madeleine Chaplain is an actor, singer, writer, director and producer.

With a Bachelor of Fine Arts (Acting), student of the The Groundlings (Los Angeles), and alumni of development programs including VIC Screen's Originate and AACTA's Regional Pitch, Maddie has a varied and growing body of work across multiple disciplines and platforms.

Her debut short 'The Bank Manager' – which Maddie wrote, directed, produced and starred in – screened at multiple 2023 festivals including Academy-qualifying Flickerfest and received nominations for a Screen Producers Australia Award and a Hollywood Music in Media Award. From here she went on to produce and act in a comedy pilot with New Zealand writer/director Jesse Griffin, and most recently again wrote, directed, produced and starred in the short film 'Little Addy', which premiered at the 2025 St Kilda Film Festival.

For her latest project, Maddie returned to the stage with her original one-woman dramedy 'No Regrets, But Molly's Not For Me', which premiered at the 2025 Melbourne Fringe Festival to enthusiastic audience acclaim.
