PEDRAM BIAZAR

Pedram Biazar is an Australian actor of Iranian heritage.

Born and raised in Sydney, Pedram trained at the renowned National Institute of Dramatic Art (NIDA) from a young age. His strengths in comedy and drama provided him with the opportunity to move into the advanced (adult) classes during his 3-year training.

The rarity of seeing actors and characters from his cultural background served as inspiration for Pedram to create and perform in diverse stories to improve representation in the arts.

His transition into college theatre saw him receive many praises and awards for his performances, resulting in his nomination for the prestigious Onstage category. His talents have since been showcased in major nationwide TV commercials in Australia including NSW's Consent Campaign and Wesley Mission's anti-gambling campaign.

In 2024, Pedram made his feature film debut in 'The Correspondent', directed by the acclaimed Kriv Stenders, where he delivered a captivating performance.

Pedram currently studies a double degree in Psychology and Media and Communications (majoring in film and production), both aiding his career as an actor.
