

AYESHAH ROSE

Actor & Director

BIOGRAPHY

Actress, model, writer and director Ayesha Rose was born in Christchurch, New Zealand with European/Asian heritage. Her interest in performance (theatre) was solely to gain confidence with an immensely shy disposition. Ayesha went on to major in dance and drama at a prestige performing arts college with a talent for writing and visual arts taking up her spare time. Ayesha has had numerous roles in film and television series across Australia and the U.S. Some of her credits include Underbelly – A Tale of Two Cities, Angel of Mine, Home and Away and Life Challenge Kokoda, a documentary where Ayesha trekked the Kokoda Trail in Papua New Guinea to raise awareness and encourage educating Australia's younger generations. Identity was a focus for subject matter within her artistic pursuits. Later, Ayesha had expanded her focus to the USA where she directed, wrote and appeared in her multiple award-winning film "Me Too". Ayesha is a multi-skilled artist and although her passion lies with acting she has since made three more films as an actor, writer and director seeking the message to remain strong throughout the production process. She will continue to make films that reflect the current times and has a strong stylistic execution.
