

Hannah Carman

Hannah Carman is an actress, singer, writer and producer from Sydney, Australia. She's had roles in a variety of projects including a supporting role in the web series "Soul Stories" (2023) currently on 'Fearless Soul', a popular YouTube channel that's accumulated over 3 million subscribers.

She's also starred in a variety of award-winning short films such as Young One Studio's short film "Ex Affliction" (2022), which won 'Best Short Film' at Sydney Women's International Film Festival in 2023. Her singing career to date has seen her writing and recording original R&B/pop records with Los Angeles based music producer Dustin Bookatz. She has also been a vocalist for the Australian Girls Choir and was vocally trained for 4 years by professional operatic singer and vocal coach Michael Archer.

In 2021, she was selected as a Top 20 finalist for the international Carmen Duncan Scholarship and was a youth ambassador for Sydney's Griffin Theatre Company. In 2022, she studied at the American Arts Film and Television Academy in their Actors Conservatory full-time program in Los Angeles. While training in LA, she co-produced (alongside US production company Diversity Pictures), wrote, sung and starred in the musical short film "The Five Stages". The short film premiered in LA at the 2022 AAFTA Film Festival, where the film was nominated for 'Best Ensemble Cast' and Hannah was nominated for multiple awards including 'Best Female Actor' and 'Best Producer'.

"The Five Stages" embarked on a festival run in 2023, becoming an official selection at the 'Dreamachine International Film Festival' in LA (winning an award for 'Best Concept'), the 'Experimental, Dance & Music Film Festival' in Toronto (winning an award for 'Best Performances') and the 'Athens International Monthly Art Film Festival' (winning an award for 'Best Art Film').

At the end of 2023, she co-produced, co-wrote and starred in another musical short film with Diversity Pictures, "The Final Curtain Call". Alongside musician and producer Dustin Bookatz, she created 3 original songs for the film, which have raised awareness on the devastating impact that human trafficking has on women and children globally.

Hannah became a professional industry member of 'Women in Film & Television Australia' (WIFT) in 2023, a group committed to improving the position and representation of women in the film and television industry. In February 2024, she began a 3-month mentorship program in Los Angeles with Diversity Pictures, where she worked alongside industry professionals such as Nick Cassavettes, director of "The Notebook". Through this program, Hannah also co-produced and starred in, alongside American actress and producer Sonia Rockwell, the proof of concept film "Queens of the Desert", which is now set to become a television series in 2025.

She has several other projects in development, including a musical feature film that she's optioning with Australian actress, producer and writer Jessica Orcsik.
