

Amy is a Perth based actor who is of Anglo-Indian heritage and holds both an Australian and British passport. She has had a strong passion for performing since she was 2 years old, and has been commended by her co-workers and crew for her professionalism and quick learning. Amy has been in advertisements shown on GWN7 across WA, and was one of the main actors in Danny Green's "Stop the Cowards Punch" campaign video which was shown on The Project, a national based talk show. She has worked with multiple casting directors, directors and professional actors, and in 2017 Amy attended The Celebrity Experience, founded by actor Adrian R'Mante, which allowed her to work with professional international actors in a week of intensive workshops.

Amy signed with Actors MI in 2017 and undergoes an intensive training course at Ali Roberts Studio each week in Stage & Screen and Voice & Accent, as well as attending workshops with casting directors and actors whenever she can to give her new skills. Amy has participated in workshops at NIDA, WAAPA and Black Swan Theatre Company, as well as studying year 12 ATAR drama. She is hoping to travel to America for acting after graduating high school, and eventually be cast in her first TV series or feature film. Amy is skilled in speaking in an Australian and American accent.
