

DAVID NICOLAU

DAVID

David Nicolau is a trilingual actor of Romanian origin, born in France and raised between New Zealand and Australia. Fluent in English, French, and Romanian, David brings a multicultural perspective and emotional depth to his work. Beyond acting, he is deeply drawn to all forms of art — painting, writing, reading, sculpting — anything that allows for creative expression. This need to stay close to art has even led him to currently train as a tattoo artist, believing that creativity is something that must be lived every day.

David is a black belt in karate with competitive and professional-level martial arts skills. He has also trained in gymnastics since early childhood, contributing to his physical awareness, discipline, and athleticism on screen.

At the core of David's work is a deep love for storytelling. Acting, for him, is not just a profession but a lifelong dream — a way to explore human experience, connect with audiences, and give voice to stories that matter. He is driven by the belief that film has the power to move people, challenge perspectives, and create lasting emotional impact, and he is committed to continually growing as an artist in service of that goal.

FILM & SCREEN

David's passion for acting began when he starred in the New Zealand feature film Field Punishment No. 1, an experience that solidified his desire to pursue acting professionally. Since then, he has appeared in a variety of short films across multiple genres, including the horror shorts POV and Tommy.

His performance in To Live Again earned him an award at Bond CentreScreen 2022, marking a significant early milestone in his career.

Alongside his on-screen work, David has trained extensively over the past five years in acting classes, programmes, and workshops with industry professionals such as Miranda Harcourt, Les Chantery, and Tom McSweeney.
