

Intense and driven, Cassandre knows how to bring wildness with a hint of French sophistication to her work.

She searches for deep human connections and the richness of her emotions allows her to reach a beautiful vulnerability even when she portrays the most villainous characters.

She still carries the naïve look of a young woman in her twenties riddled with uncertainties but can as easily portray an experienced assassin, a bloodthirsty CEO or an Amazon warrior Queen, probably because she has often been compared to Gal Gadot or Alicia Vikander.

Cassandre has great strengths as a lead but also as a supporting actor since she always gives her all to her co-stars, making sure the story is told as truthfully as possible.

She knows how to fight with a diverse range of weapons, speaks three languages and is a professional Yoga instructor who knows how to own her body in space which served her nicely on her recent role in Puzzle Box, a new independent Australian Horror from Jack Dignan.
