Notes

KJ Robertson (Ken) is a British-Australian actor based in Brisbane. With a talent for accents, he can confidently play American as well as his natural British and Australian accents.

KJ brings a wealth of real-life experiences from his career in corporate marketing and team leadership working for some of Australia's best known brands, as well as a background which includes several years working with a British war gaming events company where he was trained in Special Forces military tactics and methods by former instructors from the British SAS.

Often described as embodying the caring dad or teacher type, KJ is equally comfortable portraying corporate, police, or military characters.

KJ has experience on studio and location shoots for film and TV productions, including Monach: Legacy of Monsters (Apple TV), How to Make Gravy (Binge), Deadloch (Amazon), Mortal Kombat 2 (New Line), and more, serving as a background performer, stand-in, and picture double.

KJ will soon be seen playing a passenger-turned-zombie in the upcoming feature film Zombie Plane (starring Chuck Norris, Sophie Monk, and Vanilla Ice), and as a picture double in the feature adaptation of FING! by David Walliams (starring Richard Roxburgh, Taika Waititi, and Mia Wasikowska).

KJ was featured in Budget Direct Insurance's TVC and social media campaign for their sponsorship of the Dolphins NRL team ahead of the 2024 season.
