

JAMIE TIMONY

Jamie Timony is an Australian actor, writer and musician whose work spans film, television and comedy.

Most recently, Jamie completed filming on the feature film BULL, directed by Jeffrey Walker, playing prison officer Finlay. His recent television credits include Toby in Netflix's Apple Cider Vinegar (2025), Liam Mason in the Foxtel/Binge miniseries High Country (2024), and Adam Beaufort in the Disney+ psychological thriller The Clearing (2023).

In 2021, Jamie appeared as Daryl Woodrell opposite Adrian Grenier in the Netflix thriller Clickbait, which reached #1 on the platform in the U.S. His film credits include Sleeping Beauty, The Eye of the Storm, Tracks and The Hunter, in which he appeared opposite Willem Dafoe, as well as Hard Target 2, filmed in Thailand, and Crazy About You alongside John Cleese.

Jamie first gained international recognition playing Nate in the hit Australian series H2O: Just Add Water, which has continued to find new audiences around the world.

Alongside his dramatic work, Jamie is a creator, writer and performer with the punk band These New South Whales. He co-created, co-wrote and starred in the band's cult mockumentary series These New South Whales, which was commissioned by Comedy Central.