ABOUT ME

Adam Sattarov is an Australian-Ukrainian actor based in Sydney. A proud Jewish artist, Adam grew up singing, dancing, and making people laugh — a comedic energy he brings to all his work.

He began acting at eight and later trained at the Sydney Actors School, studying under Garth Holcombe, Lyn Pierser, and Pip Edwards. His stage credits include Little Girls Alone in the Woods (Dir. Kim Hardwick) and The Wayside Bride (Dir. Ann Houston). After these performances, Adam is much drawn to both comical and deeply emotional characters that challenge his range.

Also skilled as a 1st Assistant Director and Sound Recordist, Adam hopes to create and produce his own films while pursuing a career on stage, where his love for performance began.
